Mom, the only thing I can think to say is I love you. I've missed you for so long and now I know I'll miss you for the rest of my life. I find peace in knowing that you will no longer suffer. You will never be sad or nervous again. I'm so thankful for that. You looked so beautiful yesterday. Your skin was so pretty, just like it always was.

All the nurses that came in your room were bragging about how beautiful you were. I know you heard them and I know you were thinking, 'Oh yeah, I am.' I promise to always take care of everybody you loved. I don't know if DD told you but he told me and I want you to know. He stayed till the very end because he wanted you to know that he will always be the man you can depend on. You would be so proud of him mom. You did a good job in raising us. I love you Mom and I can't wait to be able to see you in heaven because I know you're gonna be my mom again. Rest peacefully till I get there, Mom ❤️

Dear Mom, Words can't even begin to describe how much I wish I could go back and save you from anyone and everything that brought you pain & suffering. I would give anything just to be able to tell you how sorry that I am that your life was so hard and things were always so difficult. I'm sorry that your last years on this earth weren't spent in a home that you decorated beautifully with all of your favorite home interior pictures & pictures of your grandkids. I hate so many things that you were forced to endure. I am trying my hardest to find peace so I'm trying to focus on the fact that you're with your dad and brothers in heaven. I hope you're wrapped up in the arms of Jesus with that beautiful smile on your face that you once had. You're pain free in every way and you're just happy. You deserve that. I wish you could have had that happiness here on earth for all of your days. I love you so much. I will think of you every time I have chips & cheese at the Mexican restaurant or when I make cabbage and noodles. I'll never forget getting tickled at you standing at my stove with a fork behind of your back making up reasons for me to look away so you could steal a fork full & run off. You must have eaten half the pot before I even made your dinner plate. Those were some good times, mom. They truly were. I love you and miss you always..... Amanda
