Ed Mullins lit a candle in honor of Larry.

Larry and I grew up together, shared much together and then "disappeared" from each other's presence and life - we simply lost touch, never to reconnect again. But I knew he had at least one child: Charlie. Larry, to me, was like a true brother whose toughness made me tougher and whose sense of humor could always cause me to "giggle" with stunned surprise and utter delight. I never ceased thinking of him and just now, discovered by accident, where he was and when he died. So long, Larry. Thanks for the memories of our youth. "Eddie"

Vernin Adkins lit a candle in honor of Larry.

Larry was a good man. And a friend. He would always have time to chat and we had several conversations about the military, life and other things. My condolences to the family. Fly high brother. You will always be remembered.
