Jason, I don't understand why people go to final rest before there time, or the lessons to be learned from it. But I truly believe that your soul will continue to live forever, especially in those closes to you. Your spirit canwill help guide whatever choices your love one makes. I've gained a few guardian angles along my journey, and it saddens me that they and now you are gone, but I know memorys can inspire people to keep ur presence alive,and broken hearts be stitched. (Something don't ever heal) I'll be seeing you my friend. -Zoe. (P.s. I appreciate you being supportive of Josh And my relationship! even u could see the value in it .And thank you for being his friend. Ur definitely be worth having, so watch over him too please)

Your family and friends loved and cared about you and will miss you always. I tried to give you positive things to think about instead of gloom and I think you saw that and you were making positive changes but life is fragile and can change quickly. I pray for the family and say goodbye and Rest In Peace young man.
