I'm still in shock that you left us on Sunday morning. I know that you are in a much better place. But I'm lost knowing you are gone. The only thing that comforts me at all is the knowledge that you are no longer suffering the trials of this life, and your heart will never experience anymore pain. You're in Heaven with Granny playing cards at our family table because she sat an extra chair just for you and welcomed you in. Oh how my heart aches for just one more day with you. I will be lost without our marathon phone calls. I love you eternally. I will honor your memory always.

I am lost for words for how I am feeling without you by my side. You were my life. You were my best friend. Your smile was so infectious and you were the most caring and loving person I have ever known. You made me a better person and a better husband. We made two beautiful twin girls together and I can see you in them everyday and that will help keep me going through this difficult time. I love you so much Jackie. I will see you again soon one day and we will reunite. You will forever be in my heart my love.

I am without words to express the sadness of Jackie's passing. My family and I remain in shock that this beautiful, selfless soul will no longer be with us. I can only hope she knows how much she was loved and how much she meant to me. While we may have been more distant over the past few years, she was always my very, dearest friend who helped me raise my girls. While I had to work, she provided the best care (and beyond) for my girls. I could never repay her for having such a heart to treat them as her own. Her family remains my family and I will treasure our memories for an eternity. Rest in peace, my friend. You will always be in my heart. Much love to Phil, Chelsey and Chloe.
