James delivered for me with his transport business. One of the best. I saw him a month ago and told him if he had bigger clients I understand. He said that did not matter to him. He treated everyone the same, big time or small time. I told him that means a lot to me. I'm glad I did. The world needs more people like James. RIP friend.

I could always count on James to fix my car and not worry about it not being done right and very good prices. I don't think the fact he married my best friend in the whole world had anything to do with it just that he was that good. You will be deeply missed by all James. Say hello to Jenny and Buck for me.
