It is a lovely to think that Paul is with his parents, his grandparents, aunts and uncles, and all of our Bradley cousins again. His sister, Phyllis, said as a child, when he would be dropped off at the bus stop on the hill, he would take off running back home because he'd rather be working on the farm with his dad and our grandfather, Anderson Bradley, than sitting in school. I can imagine him now running to them again. Paul had a great sense of humor. He will be missed. Love you, cousin. Cheryl Dalton
