Abbygail Nibert lit a candle in honor of Michael.

He made me smile when he would joke around. But what made me smile was him just being the dad I never had. Him and I would be playing pool on our phones together and he would always let me win and i would say why would you let me win and he would say because I'm taking it easy on you and I would laugh at it. He was a dad I never had.

Kyra Foster posted:

He was the man who stepped up to be my dad when no one else wanted too, he knew how to make you laugh and cheer you up. He was so caring and loving. Never realized how suddenly someone can be gone. From taking me to get my braces tightened to helping buy baby stuff I will really miss you, dad

He was a great dad my favorite memory of him was when we went to galatinburg Tennessee and stayed at one of the rental houses and went to the different stores and he always loved his dukes of hazard and he went to the place where we saw the different cars and he took a picture of the general Lee he was my rock.
